Attractive market opportunity

Demand for alternative forms of financing has been on the rise for years now, as conventional lenders only offer limited lending options. This can result in temporary financing gaps that can be closed using subordinated loans. Subordinated loans can also serve to optimise the capital structure or free up additional equity for further market opportunities. Property One's offering is aimed at professional players in the Swiss real estate market, including property owners, architects, project developers, building contractors, etc., and offers an additional option alongside conventional real estate financing.
